"It'll be easy. You go to Youngstown and tell them you're me and just act as you usually do. It'll keep up the Red Walker Image. Got that, now?"

sTab, a child's garden of nuclear physics, is produced every three weeks by John Koning. Subscriptions are not 8 issues for $1.00, and single issues are 15¢. Backissues to #51 are available at the same price. Trades with all other Diplomacy journals are solicited.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Due to the rising cost of mimeograph supplies, and the prospect of issues over the 1 oz. due to the absorption of Valhalla and Jutland Jollies, I am forced to raise my subscription price to 8 issues for $1.00, and to revalue all subscriptions at this rate. Sorry about that, but I am losing an average of over $10 per issue now, and I can't afford it... not every 3 weeks.

DIPCON II: Rod Walker devoted several pages of the most recent Erehwon to the gathering here in Youngstown a month ago, and as I expected he described a weekend far more interesting than any had by the actual attendees at the Youngstown Dipcon II. As entertaining as that account was, however, I do feel it necessary to make a few corrections.

1) This is not a cemetery beside my house, it is one of Youngstown's better residential sections. While it is often spoken of as being "quiet as a graveyard," it is in fact full of some of the most politically active residents in this town. Most of them vote in every election held here. Many, in fact, vote in 9 or 10 precincts each time. They are the backbone of the present administration's supporters.

2) Edi Birsan, who is certainly more attractive in person than in print, did give an invitation to any of us who happen to be in New York, but it was not exactly as Walker renders it. The actual text, however, is too embarrassing to be quoted here.

3) The Rolling Rock deliveries could hardly have been harrassed by motorcycle gangs, since Rolling Rock is delivered by motorcycle gangs. The ever-present sound of motorcycles in my neighborhood is merely evidence of the amount of Rolling Rock consumed hereabouts.

4) Walker himself was no doubt forced to fantasize the weekend because he saw so little of it. He would careen through a room occasionally, waving a glass, cup, mug, or bucket full of some foul brew, and shout something like, "Kill yanks!", or "I'll take my tea anyway I can get it!", or even "That's a pile of crap!" Naturally the rest of us, who are socially conservative, were dismayed at this, but we did our best to ignore it (except for Charles Reinsel, who was so distracted that he threatened to purn Walker several times). Nobody really got a chance to hold a conversation with Rod. Most of us doubted that it would be possible to do so.

There are considerable numbers of corrections to be made to the listings in #63, but I will defer this until the next issue due to lack of time.

WHITEHALL The Imperial General Staff has been instructed to make the liberation of German territory from Austrian occupation the first order of business. Unfortunately, before that can be accomplished, the rebellious German army standing in a state of complete mutiny to the legitimate orders of the German government in exile must first be subdued.

BALMORAL CASTLE The so-called Imperial German army of Kiel is hereby directed to lay down its arms and surrender to the mixed Anglo-Prussian army which is now based in Denmark. Failure to do so will be regarded as mutiny against the legitimate government of Germany.

/s/ Wilhelm III Imperator
All-Highest Commander
Deutsches Reich

LONDON His majesty announced in a speech from the Throne that the end of the long war in Europe is now in sight. "Thanks to the gallant efforts of our Italian allies, the stalemate in the southern Mediterranean is now ended, while we are certain that the First Anglo-Prussian Army will have little difficulty in establishing itself in Kiel, thus opening up the Continent proper to mobile warfare," His Majesty said.

The King's speech contained high praise for the splendid resistance of the Austrian soldiers, and their meticulous attention to the Conventions and Laws of War. His Majesty also stated that the war would be carried to a successful conclusion without violating the terms of the tacit agreements with the Italian Government.

ISLE OF SAPHOS The local feminist movements have recently been stirring in the MOST UNLIKELY places. The question is, can they keep it up?

VIENNA The fate of the Habsburg Empire has been determined. All that it is capable of achieving is the prevention of an Italian victory. Soon England will rule more than the waves.

FLORENCE The first full scale battle of strength between good and evil since the devil tempted Christ took place outside this fair city during the last week of December. Duca Peery called upon the forces of darkness in his bid for power. Both Sorcerers and Malignant Spirits have joined Peery, as well as Turks and Behemoth-agents of the devil. The outcome of this tremendous battle of wills is yet to be seen. It would now appear that Peery is truly the Black anti-Christ so long awaited with dread.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS:

((after 10 August))

PETROGRAD (13 September 1904) Tsar Boris II returned to the capital today after a lieisurely trip through His domains. His Majesty had been searching for some signs of the reported Irish, Ukrainian, and oriental uprisings which supposedly had occurred in His realm. "The reports," said His Majesty at a press conference-brunch at the Winter Palace, "are greatly exaggerated. The so-called Irish invasion turned out to be a boatload of immigrants. When they debarked, they were startled to see people walking about on only two feet, and they attacked the G.U.M. branch here in order to buy some wheelbarrows. Several Ukrainians were indeed demanding recognition, so we wrote their names on the cheese vats before we tossed them in. As for the orientals, some laundry boys in Siberia, Turkestan, Manchuria, Mongolia, Korea, Alaska, Transcaucasia, Persia, Afghanistan, and other Imperial possessions were on strike, demanding increased wages. The union leader, one Timur Voyeur (corrupted somehow to "Voyna Emir" in the illiterate foreign press) led a march on the capital to demand recognition. We put his name on the cheese vat, too."

NEW YORK (3 October 1904) The infamous headquarters of the notorious "Eben Press," a tattoo parlor in a nearby suburb of Queens, was obliterated today by being buried under five megatons of molten cheese, two megatons of molten lead, and (horrors! gasp!) a 500 megabilge Billy Graham. Ten minutes later, every living thing within 150 miles promptly and simultaneously vomited.

TARA (11 October 1904) Queen Lottahuuhaa of Hawaii, on tour here on behalf of Moral Marriage ("Keep it in the family!") was very disappointed to learn that "this ancient city" is nothing more than a sod-covered hillock with some old rocks on it and that Tara of Georgia has more buildings on it than Tara of Ireland has ever had in all of history. But, of course, one would expect that sort of distortion out of the incompetent "Eben Press," whose destruction a week ago has gladdened the hearts of the entire Western World (and most of the Eastern World, too). The hill is crowded with people, though, today, and everywhere the gay banners fly: "In We Cest!" The high point of the afternoon came when Her Majesty was introduced to the supposed pretender to the Ukrainian throne, "Daniel." "Daddy!" She screamed. "Little Lotta!" he cried. Yes, gentle reader, the "pretender Daniel" was, in fact, the father of the Queen, Prince Lechery Bergia, who had deserted his wife and child years before to become an itinerant nuisance and throne-jumper. The reunion of father and child was most touching; however, owing to certain customs of the Hawaiian Royal House which we have discussed before, and to the fact that sTab is a family magazine, and to the tender years (7) of the editor, we cannot report any details. Suffice it to say that the procedure would have gratified Pope Alexander VI very much. Her Majesty, shortly afterward, breathlessly announced that, in accordance with Hawaiian custom, She will marry Her father. The Archbishop of Canterbury will perform both the ceremony and droits de sieigneur.

KYIV (14 July 1904) (EP) Tsar Daniel rejoiced over the successful bombardment of Warsaw. "The true explanation of the destruction of Russian cities is not that Grodno has declared war on everyone, but that we have declared war on Russia. Bordshabiazin dlenda est!"

BYALYSTOK (18 July 1904) (EP) What is apparently the latest in the series of Ukrainian bombardment struck today. Grodno has been demolished by a 600 megaton duck egg. Now Europe can breathe without fear.

GENEVA (DWE) If a 600 megaton Duck egg lies rotting on Grodno, buddy, nobody is going to breathe without fear... or with fear... for long.

BERLIN Dr. Hans Feodor, residence physician at New Peerhaus, today said, "John Koning is working too hard!"

With that the good doctor took off for a weekend of beer-drinking in the Wilhelmallee.

MISSIF:

MARGARET GEMIGNANI, 3200 N.E. 36th St., Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. 33308

Boardman is Boardman. He does not like 1790 better than 1969. He only likes Boardman year - comes the revolution, all will believe, etc, etc.

Bill Linden, you are for women's ? rights. If it happened, you'd have a fit. Would you vote for a lady president? If you had lived in the middle ages, would you have served a queen? That is the question!

And now to important things: Beer! ((Yeah!)) It is frightening to think of German breweries merging, but more frightening to think of American breweries merging. Several sources of major water pollution could bottle the pollution. It would taste better. Up with pure beer. ((Hmmm... did Roland Tzudiker know something when he compared a certain American beer to the Brooklyn sewer system?))

JOHN BOARDMAN, 592 16th St., Brooklyn, New York 11218 Derck's puzzlement over my knowledge of royal lineages is not necessary. Anyone who knows his royalties will thoroughly understand why almost every royal family in the world has been either dethroned or rendered harmless.

As Anthony Ludovici said in another context, it is a case of aristocracy versus the aristocrats.

There can be several legitimate lines in a royal family. The most senior line usually possess the crown or the claim to it, but this does not mean that the cadet lines are illegitimate. For example, the Earls of Munster are senior to the British royal family, but illegitimate. The Dukes of Braunschweig-Lüneburg and Saxe-Coburg-Gotha are the heads of lines junior to the British royal line, thoroughly legitimate, but disinherited by a royal proclamation of 1917. The Duke of Kent is head of a line junior to the British royal family, and legitimate; he is something like 11th in the succession to the British throne.

Bill Linden's notion of giving an American throne to the Baltimore Bonaparte heir is a little late. The last of the Baltimore Bonapartes dropped dead in 1945 while walking his dog in Central Park. But there are living heirs of both Lucien and Jerome Bonaparte. Lucien was the elder, but through some elaborate technical dynastic argument present-day Bonapartists center their hopes on Jerome's heir.

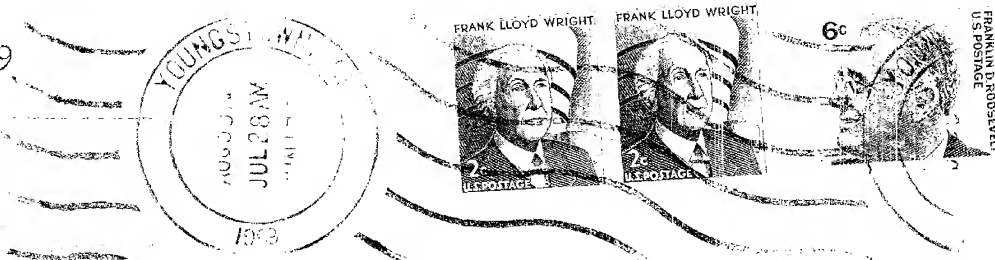

The presence of the Crown of St. Stephen in the United States has been the topic of numerous recriminations between the American and Hungarian governments -- though one wonders what either party wants with it. Who, by the way, presently owns the Crown of Menomakh? And what happened to the original English regalia during the Commonwealth?

((John's letter continues on to several other topics, but it will have to be postponed until #65. This is also true of letters from Chuck Carey, Bill Linden, and one from Red Walker which may be suppressed (No, not your salad letter, Red... I suppressed that a long time ago).

Moreover, entries in the contest have been light. I have selected a prize which is in keeping with the contest, but to reveal it would be to nearly answer one of the questions. The results and the prize will be revealed in the next issue, which will be bigger than this one. With a mailing list of over 200, I find 12 and 18 page issues in alternation more practical -- postage-wise -- than a succession of 15 page issues. Bye. -- jgk
